

More than one discipline in mind?

Humanities Doctoral Programme Concordia University

Interdisciplinary Studies in Society and Culture

This programme allows highly qualified students to engage in interdisciplinary study at the doctoral level. It encourages the development of innovative research which crosses disciplinary boundaries. The programme of study involves three fields: a major field (which must be in the Humanities, Social Sciences, or Fine Arts) and two minor fields.

Applicants should have a Masters degree with excellent standing from a recognized university. The project must fall within the scope of available faculty and facilities at Concordia. Applicants are encouraged to discuss their proposal in advance with the Director.
